

Bitcoin Podcast You, Me, and BTC Announce an Interview with Amagi Metals CEO, Stephen Macaskill

On Tuesday, December 16, 2014, the BTC talk-show and podcast You, Me, and BTC will release an interview with the CEO of Amagi Metals, Stephen Macaskill. The interview will focus on the cryptocurrency aspects of Amagi Metals, one of the leading physical gold and silver bullion dealers, known in the cryptocurrency world as one of the first, largest, and most reputable businesses to begin accepting Bitcoin in December 2012. Macaskill will talk about the changes and the growth he has noticed in his business as well as in the entire Bitcoin economy over the past year. Moreover, the young entrepreneur will answer at least one question coming from the general Bitcoin community.

Among Bitcoin and Altcoin news sites, Stephen Macaskill is well known as a bold and inspiring anarchist. This is strongly supported by the Amagi Metals' announcement that they will no longer accept US Dollars as a payment method after 2017. Macaskill considers gold, silver, and Bitcoin to be sound money, meaning they are much better than the paper currency printed by the government. The YMB team generally agrees with these views, as demonstrated during the past podcast episodes and previous Amagi Metals review when they encouraged the use of gold and silver.

This will not be the first Amagi Metals content released by You, Me, and BTC. In March 2014, Episode 11 featured Macaskill as the Bitcoin podcast's very first guest. Furthermore, the show focused on gold and money several more times since that episode, releasing interviews with two other precious metals dealers and lots of commentary on how the Bitcoin economy relates to our traditional monetary system. YMB also released their Amagi Metals review in November 2013. Therewithal, one of the podcast co-hosts, Tim Baker, showed off some of Amagi Metals' silver bullion products in a video for that review.

A captivating with Stephen Macaskill will take place as part of You, Me, and BTC's one year anniversary celebration. Mainly by coincidence, the 52nd episode of YMB's weekly Bitcoin podcast is scheduled to be released on Christmas day. This will mark one full year of podcasting for YMB, so they will be running an anniversary event called "Twelve Days of YMB Christmas." The interesting thing is that, during this promotion, YMB will release brand new Bitcoin content every day for twelve days in a row. These podcast specials will contain interviews with the show's past guests, content created by the Bitcoin community, and much more. On the last day, Christmas, it will be featured a special anniversary episode with the show's three co-hosts, Daniel Brown, Tim Baker, and John Stuart.